CASCADE

Avenue corners that are cheap are scarce! When one is found take it quick; it will pay! Almost without exception everyone who within the past ten years has purchased North Cascade Avenue property has made money. They have averaged through all vicissitudes about 20 per cent. per annum profit.

Compared with values on the best streets of other Eastern and Western resorts, Cascade avenue values are reasonable. The longer these lots are held; the better will be the profit. If they can be bought for cash, a larger percentage of profit can be realized on the money actually invested. I have for sale the cheapest corners on this beautiful avenue. Easy terms can be made

One corner, 100x190 ft., for $3700; easy terms.

One corner, 100x190 ft., for $4500; easy terms.

WELCOME.

Our new contemporary, The Evening Telegraph, appeared last evening for the first time We call it new because it has a new title, a new head, and new editors Its policy as announced in its leading editorial will be home industries first, the Republican party second

Our new contemporary is welcome. There is room here for a good evening paper and we do not doubt that Mr Eddy and his associates will make a good one of The Evening Telegraph They come to Colorado Springs with a high reputation for ability and energy and they should meet with a cordial reception from all our citizens Under their management we shall expect to see The Telegraph working with the THE GAZETTE for the best interests of our city and State, and for the cause of good government everywhere

THIS IS TOUCHING

Nothing that has happened recently has reminded us more of the early Greeks and Romans, or at the very latest, of the middle ages, than the response of Mr. Thurber of Detroit, to Mr. Cleveland's call to come live with him and be his private secretary Thurber is a partner of Don Dickinson and is said to be making $10,000 a year at that business But he has been summoned to a higher duty by a Master whose word is law and right nobly does he respond

"Afford to go? There is nothing to be considered except Mr Cleveland's call. I hope he is not mistaken in his confidence and judgment of me, but he thinks that I can serve him and I shall go. I would not leave my children the record that he summoned me, that I accepted, and above all, that I in some measure fulfilled his expectations of me than to leave them a great fortune.

There has been no such exhibition of devotion to the Republic on the part of citizens who are sacrificing their All for the public weal to go into office under Mr Cleveland since Mettius Curtius jumped into the big hole in the Forum at Rome. There is Gresham has left a life Judgeship and Carlisle has thrown away a sure place in the Senate and Hoke Smith has given up $4,000 a year squeezing damages out of Georgia railroads, and Dan Lamont has left the Presidency of one of the biggest street car companies in the country But Thurber is more like that other Roman who preferred to have his son killed rather than disobey orders We live in softer times there is no question of fear and death involved but Thurber will rather leave his children poor than disobey a summons from the Great Leader

After such exhibitions of patriotism and personal devotion as these we may say that the former times were better than these or that the heroes are lost to days

A GOOD RIDDANCE

There is a rather high tariff in some bodies in the United States and we hope to see the sort of a bill issued of the Fifty [illegible] Congress Nothing in the experience of the country has ever been so costly It has been incompetent, undignified and in most ways useless for good in some ways positively harmful It has been of use chiefly as an awful example of what a legislative body ought not to be

Can anybody mention one useful measure enacted by this House outside of regular appropriation bills? What is its record? The first session was almost wholly occupied with the discussion of a lot of little tariff bills that everybody knew [illegible] would become and were not intended to become laws The time not spent in talking about these utterly useless and unintentional bills was spent in filibustering

At the second session what little time has not been wasted in filibustering against [illegible] has been used for the passage of the appropriation bills

[illegible] can understand what is meant by appropriation bills and their passage is this How [illegible] that does not [illegible] United States would have reason to be thankful if their legislature as a rule, would do nothing but pass the appropriation bills and adjourn. But this House hacked the appropriation bills in such shape as wilfully to cripple nearly every branch of the public service, so as to send up to the former expenditure of many thousands of dollars, and so as to make a deficiency bill one of the necessary things in the next Congress

Look at this record just for a minute alongside of the record of the Fifty first Congress That Congress passed a great tariff bill itself the latter [illegible] months

It passed the bill to make silver [illegible]

It passed the Tariff bill free and fair

It provided generously for our new navy and for coast defence

It provided the free trade tariff for Sugar

It passed the Australian ballot bill

It passed the new Court of Private Land Claims

It passed the useful appropriation bills [illegible] to be managed up in the usual way

It settled the French spoliation claims

It passed the International Copyright act

It passed the Postal Business bill which has done much toward rehabilitating our merchant marine

It admitted six new States to the Union

It provided for such inspection of our cattle as to secure the introduction of our meat products in European countries It revised the public land laws amended the Interstate Commerce act and made new laws about collection of internal revenue

These are a few of the greater measures of the Fifty first Congress In all it passed 228 bills and joint resolutions, 218 of which were approved by the President and became laws

Most of the measures specially mentioned above were enacted against the most determined and protracted opposition on the part of the very large minority Ample time was given for discussion but filibustering was squelched

In the Fifty second Congress more time has been spent in roll calls, filibustering and dilatory motions and speeches than has been given to discussion and this when the Democratic majority was 140 whereas in the Fifty first Congress the Republican majority was only 30

The Fifty first House was an efficient legislature

The Fifty second House has been a mob either afraid or unable to do even the things the majority wished to have done

It is the difference between Speaker Reed and Speaker Crisp

Still more it is the difference between the Republican party and the Democratic party

PROMETHEUS JENKINS AND HIS LIVER.

There is a regular epidemic of classicalism a genuine classical revival, breaking out among the Democrats to find a parallel for which we must go back to the days of the French revolution This we might naturally expect among Southern statesmen, whose stories of ancient lore are more profound than those of our own public men, but the most serious attack of the epidemic has not been suffered by a Southern man, the revival has not broken out most violently on the other side of Mason and Dixon's line In fact the outbreak has come where one least expected it—from Jenkins to wit, the little "Dr" Jenkins who is Bob Crokers nephew and who mismanages the quarantine office at New York

Heretofore Jenkins has been kept quiet or adopting his own analogy we might say, kept chained, by his Tammany masters, and not allowed to say anything or to write anything for publication the proofs of which had not been carefully revised by one of Tammany's "litery fellers

But at last Jenkins has turned An attack on him in the Washington Post proved to be the last straw and here is his answer, sent by telegraph without waiting for editing or revision by anybody

"From the editorial cited says Dr Jenkins addressing the editor of The Post "I presume you are a Republican We never have anticipated giving satisfaction to Republicans or those who had to undergo quarantine

I have no leisure the Doctor continues, to enter into controversy because I do not own any space in any editorial page and am therefore at the disadvantage of a chained victim at the mercy of a cowardly enemy who would take an advantage under these circumstances. I might use the celebrated picture of Prometheus bound and the vultures preying upon his vitals to illustrate the relations between myself and the petty [illegible] of a partisan press History knows noower [illegible] more [illegible] than [illegible] through his family [illegible] particularly where there are [illegible] I think that I ask for my [illegible] at your early [illegible] hands in this matter I am proud of [illegible] I have made as a Democrat [illegible] a professional [illegible] and [illegible] as a Democrat

[illegible] is delightful We advise Jenkins to put the quarantine business [illegible] and write humorous sensational letters according to Bill Nye and Mark Twain He has a literary touch which we know they would acknowledge [illegible] he never and [illegible] they must confess he is more unassailed than theirs There is a freshness a naivete about Jenkins that might bring a thrill to the heart of a Ward MacAllister or a smile to the face of a Munkittrick How much he tells in those few short sentences He has never anticipated giving satisfaction to Republicans or those who had to undergo quarantine He is proud of the service he has made as a Democrat He runs the office as a Tammany office and so long as the Boss is satisfied those who undergo quarantine may go to — Fire Island

But this about Prometheus [illegible] [illegible] the late lamented [illegible] [illegible] were some family [illegible] [illegible] the more living the vulture at Irvington is Jenkins liver And by the way this [illegible] that [illegible] [illegible] will at least [illegible] lives

Long may our [illegible] Jenkins live for he is the [illegible] Democrats [illegible] Jenkins Hurrah [illegible] that he is not his [illegible] —he knows better his own prototype He has named himself and Prometheus Jenkins he will stay so long as his brief hour upon the public stage may last

A local gang engine has been ordered for the Crystal River railroad and it is expected here this week There will be no third rail on this line from Carbondale to Marble as was originally supposed —Glenwood Avalanche

AN OLD TIME PROSPECTOR.

Perhaps an Eskimo Who Was Driven South Sixty Thousand Years Ago.

Texas has lost its old settlers stretching away back toward the dawn of civilization the hems of whose garments tradition does not reach but whose careers were probably as full of wild adventure as that of any Indian or Mexican half or half ever adorned the page of Texas history One of those old settlers was found about 10 days ago by D D Pittman while digging a well on his lot on Thomas avenue Dallas

At a depth of 32 feet below the surface, and after blasting through a stratum of limestone four feet thick Mr Pittman found a human skeleton in the petrified quicksands. The skull finger bones and other thin bones on being brought in contact with the atmosphere crumbled away to powder but some of the larger bones stood the test of atmospheric exposure, and beyond the crumbling of the articular surfaces, are in a good state of preservation. This is particularly the case with the thigh bone.

It in all other respects resembles the thigh bone of modern man except as to its anatomical neck which Dr Armstrong the city health officer, says is not a special characteristic of the present race However as nature adapts itself to its surroundings, it is to be expected that there was some difference between the fore and aft movement of the thigh bone that was in use 60,000 years ago and that of the present time

The bone while as thick and heavy as that of a man of medium height, is only 18 inches long which would represent a man about 4 feet 2 inches high or about the stature of an Eskimo and taken in connection with the glacial formations those of the second glacial period in which the skeleton was found there is hardly any doubt but that it belongs to the Eskimo race

The cold of that period destroyed the southern tribes except such of their hardiest members as escaped south That there was a southward movement of Eskimos in those days is as certain as that there is now a winter movement of tramps from the rigorous climate of Iowa and Nebraska to the more genial one of Texas Doubtless this poor Eskimo lived between the paleolithic and neolithic periods the age of unpolished and polished stone weapons marking the hiatus in the Bible between Adam and the period where connected history begins

What a wonderful story could this skeleton tell if it had a tongue! But here the question suggests itself Had this Eskimo yet reached the origin of language? Did he say yes, or did he merely nod his head? How did he string the echoes of his thoughts together? Unfortunately the skull that part of it most valuable to science has crumbled away —Galveston News

Where Soldiers Are Shot.

In the work on gunshot wounds, Dr Ludwig Brandt gives some interesting statistics about the Franco-Prussian war in 1870-1 The number of officers and men of all ranks belonging to the German armies who were wounded during the war amounted to the immense total of 116,821 Of these 99,576 survived 11,028 died in hospital and 6,221 died on the field of battle

The wounds of those who were under hospital treatment including the wounds of those who died in hospital were thus distributed Wounds of the head 11,041 of the neck 1,922 of the chest and back 11,496 abdomen 4,653 upper extremities 33,914 and of the lower extremities, 43,952 while in 3,721 instances the situations of the wounds have not been recorded

A noticeable fact is the unusually large proportion of wounds of the head which nearly equal those of the chest and back together and approach thirty times the number of those of the abdomen The number given 11,041 however includes 130 injuries to the face

The wounds by rifle bullets more than double the number of those caused by artillery projectiles but the information in this respect is not of much value as out of 2,000 gunshot wounds of the face in no fewer than 1,808 instances the particular projectiles by which the wounds were caused have not been recorded —British Medical Journal

Curious Statistics of the Blind

The people of Russia are more terribly afflicted with the infirmity of blindness than any other race, sect or nation on the globe the proportion being 21 to every 10,000 of population In 1886 there was an official census taken of the blind of Europe These statistics show a remarkable state of affairs especially in European Russia, the Caucasus and Poland In the countries named there was a total of 190,872 persons who were entirely blind The whole of the remainder of Europe and mind this includes the thickly populated countries of Germany France Spain Holland Belgium Great Britain etc only has a blind population numbering 189,812 while the three American North Central and South with their islands have less than 23,000 persons who are totally bereft of sight

In the Caucasus the women especially those of country districts are more liable to occur than men the proportion being about [illegible] and there are 25 blind men for every 16 blind women the same percentage holding good over the most of Russia in Europe —St. Louis Republic

Electric Shocks From a Carpet.

Our sleeping room has an Ingrain carpet on which we are marked electrical experiences On a cold morning one can hardly take a step without being strongly electrified By shuffling across the carpet taking only two steps, I have many times drawn a spark one eighth of an inch long By taking a dozen shuffling steps and touching the water faucet I have several times drawn a spark nearly one half of an inch long Indeed it is so common and so excessive that it is quite uncomfortable.

I have several times thought seriously of getting up some arrangement for gradually dissipating the charge on one's body so that we can avoid the unpleasant shock when using the water It should be stated that this high degree of electrification is not an everyday experience but it is very common when the thermometer in the room goes below 30 or 40 degrees Fahr —Minneapolis Cor Science

Sir Joshua's Tame Bird.

Sir Joshua Reynolds used to amuse himself in his last days in his house in Leicester square with a little tame bird which like the favorite spider of the prisoner in the Bastille, often served to while away a lonely hour But this proved a fleeting pleasure for one summer morning the window of the chamber being by accident left open the little favorite took flight and was irrecoverably lost although its master wandered for hours in the square and neighborhood in the fruitless endeavor to regain it. Catarrh

My daughter was afflicted for nearly a year with catarrh The physicians being unable to help her my pastor recommended Ayers Sarsaparilla I followed his advice Three months of regular treatment with Ayers Sarsaparilla and Ayers Pills completely restored my daughter's health —Mrs Louise Bielle, Little Canada, Ware Mass.

Rheumatism

Great Tortoises. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries navigators reported huge land tortoises in two widely separated regions, the Galapagos islands in the Pacific and several islands in the Indian ocean. The tortoises were taken from Mauritius and Reunion but are to have been particularly numerous in the smaller island of Rodriquez. From this island they were in 1761 being sent by thousands to Mauritius but early in the present century extermination was here complete and only in the little island of Aldabra are a few specimens of the tortoise now known to be living in a wild state. Steps are being taken to preserve the individuals and to introduce them into other islands. Two tortoises—probably of the Rodriques kind—were delivered to the royal artillery on the surrender of Mauritius in 1810, and one of them, 3½ feet high with a shell 6½ feet in circumference, is still living.

A French Locomotive. The patent of J. J. Heilman to be tested on the state railways of France gives promise of important and instructive results. It proposes to combine the advantages of electric and steam motors for railway traction while rejecting the most undesirable features of both, and offers a system that can be adopted anywhere without change of track or rolling stock. The electric current is to drive the wheels, but it is not to be conveyed from stationary machines along the line, but is to be generated on the train, the locomotive being simply a traveling electric plant. A steam engine at the front of the locomotive is to work the generating dynamo which will furnish current to a small motor placed on each axle of the locomotive and also, when it is desirable to extend the system further to a motor on each axle of the cars. The absurdity of converting the steam into electricity before using the power is declared to be apparent only. The double loss in this energy of the fuel is more than offset by the gain in applying rotary power direct to the axles, avoiding [illegible] the rails, and making unnecessary the connecting rods, cranks and great wheels whose jar and friction absorb a great part of the motive force. The [illegible] motive, it is claimed, gives [illegible] lation of power, and an increased speed to fifty-six to sixty two miles an hour without change of road bed.

The Smallest Woman. It is claimed that the most diminutive human being of modern times is Princess Tom Pouce, born at Buenos Ayres of French parents. She is now 16 years old but weighs only fifteen pounds at her birth and but twenty inches—an inch and a half less than that of Gen. Tom Thumb. Her wrist measures two and one-half inches in circumference. Her father strangely enough was a giant and her mother a tall and robust woman.

A [illegible] JUST OFFICE.

[illegible] Postmaster [illegible] to move the [illegible] Colorado Springs.

If the patrons of the postoffice have any business with Uncle Sam [illegible] they will find themselves in a new office. No expense need either for the convenience of doing the business at the old stand [illegible] the business [illegible] population, [illegible] For the past few years the business of the Colorado Springs office has been constantly growing [illegible] fact that it has been difficult for the government to keep pace with its needs. The town has been rather peculiar in [illegible] years. Its growth from a permanent population of [illegible] to [illegible] This is not a very remarkable feature either for many other towns have done the same [illegible] Colorado Springs has at [illegible] holding population especially in the summer time. The population is one of a class that come and go and [illegible] the headquarters of a large percent of the big corporations of the state which business in other places. For the above reasons and others the business of the office is more larger than is the ordinary city of 15 thousand people. It is no wonder then that for several years there have been constant changes and constant demands for enlarged quarters and additional help. During that time the office has been rearranged three or four times moved once, the free delivery established, while we have had seven postmasters. Now the office is being managed by an [illegible]

Many claim it the most [illegible] to the [illegible] that the eminent [illegible] man John Wanamaker has held the office of Postmaster General but none more so than Colorado Springs. He has always had a watchful eye to our interests and especially since his visit here two years ago. It is to his consideration that we are indebted for the great improvements just upon the eve of his retirement from office. A part of the credit also must be given to Mr J. F. Sedgwick and others of our business men who have labored hard to secure these advantages, and to bring the subject before the Postmaster General.

The changes in the office were made last night, and as soon as the employes can get settled in their new quarters the city will have the best postoffice facilities in its history. The quarters have been enlarged by the addition of the room in the Robertson block recently occupied by J. D. O'Hare. Architects have been busy making the two rooms practically one. The south room is entirely devoted to the private boxes and the general delivery. A new [illegible] has been put in which gives an addition of 110 boxes. In the north room will be the money order window, the stamp window, the mailing boxes and the carriers' windows. The mailing boxes will be near the stamp windows and desks for writing will be provided outside of the money order window, which will prevent the crowding that has been common there before. The stamp and money order clerks will be separated from the other employes by an iron grating twelve feet square. The postmaster's private room will remain as at present. Altogether the arrangements will be very complete and it is hoped satisfactory. Paul Gerhardt superintended the work of removal last evening.
